Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

State Costs for enforcing the law:

This bill amends the Wisconsin Family and Medical Leave Act by requiring employers of 50 or more employees to provide leave for crime victims to testify, attend a proceeding or receive counseling related to the crime. Over the past four years, the Equal Rights Division of the department received an average of 160 cases per year under the Family and Medical Leave Act. Passage of this bill may cause a small increase of about 10% in caseload for the division but not significant enough to require increased staff, since an Equal Rights Officer is expected to complete 132 cases per year. Informational brochures on the law that are published by the Equal Rights Division will need to be reprinted at an estimated cost of $1,000 (GPR funded). This cost will be absorbed within the Equal Rights Division's budget.

Local Costs:

The costs to local government are difficult to estimate since it is not known how many employees will actually request crime victims leave and how many employees are already granted leave by their employers for these purposes. It appears local government costs will definitely be incurred, however. According to the 2002 Public Employment Data for Local Governments - Wisconsin, there were 276,045 employees in local government. (About half of these employees are employed by local public school districts.) If we assume that 1% of all local government employees would request 4 hours leave, at an average wage of $12.50/hour, and that those employees work in positions requiring 100% coverage (e.g., schools, nursing homes, law enforcement etc.), local costs to provide the leave would be approximately $138,000 per year for all local units of government in the state.

Long-Range Fiscal Implications

There may be a long-term increase in complaints filed under the Wisconsin Family and Medical Leave Law as a result of this legislation that may result in costs to the department that cannot be absorbed.
